

2022

Allotropes

Prince Bush

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.wayne.edu/woodwardreview>

Part of the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation

Bush, Prince (2022) "Allotropes," The Woodward Review: A Creative and Critical Journal: Vol. 1: Iss. 1, Article 12.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.wayne.edu/woodwardreview/vol1/iss1/12>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@WayneState. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Woodward Review: A Creative and Critical Journal by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@WayneState.

Prince Bush

Allotropes

The moon rolls down the street.
The wind threw it. It chokes cars and threatens people on the sidewalk. It shrinks

in the river the moon through earth tides controls in space. Someone grabbed the moon and pulled it out of the river

3,000 years ago, today too, global warming was there

celebrating fall
oil and coal

and winter and summer and spring, not necessarily celebrating,

but working.